Background and justification

The United Nations Human Settlements Programme (UN-Habitat) is the United Nations programme working towards a better urban future. Its mission is to promote socially and environmentally sustainable human settlements development and the achievement of adequate shelter for all.

Mandated by the UN General Assembly in 1978 to address the issues of urban growth, it is a knowledgeable institution on urban development processes, and understands the aspirations of cities and their residents. For forty years, UN-Habitat has been working in human settlements throughout the world, focusing on building a brighter future for villages, towns, and cities of all sizes. This has placed UN-Habitat in the best position to provide answers and achievable solutions to the current challenges faced by our cities.

UN-Habitat is capitalizing on its experience and position to work with partners to formulate the urban vision of tomorrow. It works to ensure that cities become inclusive and affordable drivers of economic growth and social development.

UN-Habitat Regional Office for Arab States (ROAS) was established in 2011 in Cairo, Egypt, and provides technical cooperation and capacity building to 18 countries across the Arab region. The Regional Office promotes and implements policies, programs, and operational projects in UN-Habitat's focus areas, at regional, national, and local levels, aimed at achieving sustainable urban development in the countries of the region, and provide technical cooperation services.

The Arab region has been witnessing multiple political and environmental crises that have aggravated urban conditions in the region, increasing poverty, informal settlements and under serviced areas. The majority of people displaced by conflicts and natural disasters are displaced into urban centres, causing a dramatic surge in urban population and an increased pressure on the
